• Number of students – 1,064
• Number of employees – 98
• Number of departments – 10
• Number of fields of study – 7

About the faculty

The mission of the faculty is based on conducting multidisciplinary fields of study, which educate, among others, future diplomats, officials, managers and third sector employees. We teach methodology, provide scientific tools and teach language skills so as to analyse reality. Students of the faculty have the opportunity to get to know the multicultural world both during classes and during international scholarships.

The research interdisciplinarity of the faculty consists in combining the achievements of the humanities, social sciences and the broadly understood discipline of political science. The specificity of research also consists in its internationalisation. Research areas are classified both regionally – they concern, among others, Europe, Asia, both Americas; as well as problematically – they include, among others, research on peace and security or political theory. Researchers of the faculty conduct international and national scientific projects in the field of foreign policy of states, sub-state entities, ethnic, religious and cultural diversity.

Project “Operationalisation of the soundscape public value of the post-industrial cities”.

The aim of the project is to map urban areas and diagnose the impact of noise in these areas on the daily lives of residents of Lodz, Tampere and Manchester. The field of research will include municipal institutions, residents and experts in the field of soundscape. The project manager is dr Justyna Anders - Morawska
Faculty of International and Political Studies of the University of Lodz is a member of the UL Interdisciplinary Centre for Urban Studies

The Centre conducts scientific research, implements educational and popular science projects and cooperates with the broadly understood environment in the area of urban studies. The Centre organises discussions with experts, runs counselling activity and a series of publications on urban issues. Dr. Justyna Anders - Morawska is the representative of the Faculty in the Scientific Council of the Centre.

Project “The role of cities in the European Union’s policy towards China”.

It is a study on the scale of cooperation between cities of the European Union (EU) and those in the People’s Republic of China (PRC). Based on a survey sent to the European cities with more than 50,000 inhabitants, a map of China’s active partners in the EU will be created. Ten selected cities will be analysed in more detail, among others, motives for cooperation will be examined. The EU representatives will be also interviewed about the role of European cities in China’s policy. Dr hab. Tomasz Kamiński, professor at the University of Lodz is the project manager.

Fields of study

First-cycle studies:

- Political Science
- International Relations
- International Cultural Studies
- National Security
- Asian Studies
- International and Political Studies
- International Marketing
Second-cycle studies:

- Political Science
- International Relations
- International Cultural Studies
- International and Political Studies

Fields of study in English:

- International Marketing – first-cycle studies
- International and Political Studies – first- and second-cycle studies