

“UŁ Student with a Disability” – a university-wide educational project

The aim of the project was to improve the accessibility of the University of Łódź for persons with disabilities by supporting organizational changes, eliminating architectural barriers, and increasing staff competencies. The planned activities were comprehensive, covering all key areas of accessibility.

As part of the project, training was provided, among other areas, in inclusive education, including training for staff responsible for teaching physical education classes and foreign language courses. The project also included training aimed at raising disability awareness; developing skills in working with, serving, and supporting persons with disabilities; improving the teaching competencies of university staff in educating students with disabilities; and training in universal design and digital accessibility.
